TEACHING EXPERIENCE

THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT AUSTIN

Instructor on Record

Syntax and Semantics: The Structure and Meaning of Utterances (upper-division), Fall 2024

Introduction to the Study of Language (lower-division)

7 courses: Fall 2025, Summer 2025 (Asynchronous), Spring 2025, Spring 2024, Fall 2023, Spring 2023, Fall 2022

General Topics: Most of the topics below are taught every semester.

- theoretical linguistics (including topics on inferences, lexical semantics, formal semantics, information structure, politeness), language contact, historical linguistics, language acquisition, sociolinguistics, neuro&psycholinguistics

Languages: My class focuses on representing understudied languages (e.g. Paraguayan guaraní, Angaité, Nadahup) and sign languages (e.g. ASL, LSM, Zinacantec Family Homesign). It includes documented data provided by UT linguists.

Special Topics: My class provides a chance to learn two or three topics other than the general topics, which are selected based on students' preferences each semester (see below the list of topics that has been covered so far). I am mainly responsible for class discussions and assessments.

- computational linguistics/natural language processing, psycholinguistics, language documentation, sign languages, writing systems, constructed languages
